
key board adjustment work i have to hold down the keys new person here..

Posted by Andrea Cowdell - 2009/10/04 16:57

hi..i was diagnosed with depression at 13..now at 25 doc has decided with me that this is bi polar not just regular depression..prozac and zoloft have done nothing for me really..doc is suggesting lithium but my sis had a really bad experince with it and i am scared..i have my doc on hold if i say no he then would try welbutron...I am still hoping for a more natural remedy or helper..any one know anything? advice? the main prob is i am a student and single ma..work part time..no health insurance i am paying for this out of my pocket and there aint much of a pocket left..I am really looking for a cheap herbal rememdy..someone told me they saw on the net some spring water with a higher level of lithium in it..has anyone ever tried that? any expenices/advicce would be good.. thanks..OCEANS

=====

key board adjustment work i have to hold down the keys new person here..

Posted by James D. Milton - 2009/10/04 16:57

thanks..OCEANS You are most welcome! Wishing you success in finding the meds that are effective for you from, James D. Milton Standard Medical Disclaimer

=====

key board adjustment work i have to hold down the keys new person here..

Posted by Lynda - 2009/10/04 16:57

any expenices/advicce would be good.. If your pdoc writes aletter to the drug company verifying that you are unable to pay for your meds, ypu are eligible to receive them free of charge. Peace, key board adjustment work i have to hold down the keys new person here..

=====

Posted by Xoticsr us - 2009/10/04 16:57

thanks..OCEANS You are always welcome. Your friend on the rollercoaster from hell, Shawn

=====